As this centennial year of Lassen Volcanic National Park and the National Park Service comes to a close, we reflect on the amazing events and people that share their passion for Lassen with us. It was an eventful year indeed, and a lot of planning went into making sure we celebrated the centennial with many audiences throughout the year.

Lassen Volcanic National Park began celebrations in January with a Winter Film Festival at the Khom Yah-mah-nee Visitor center and wrapped discussing holding a second celebration this winter as well.

The Hike & Bike the Highway on June 11 heralded in the busy summer season with the first through travel along the park highway for the year.

The park’s name was heard all over local news stations, as lovers of the park from Lassen, Shasta, Tehama, and Butte counties flocked to the park in record numbers to share in the fun.

August 9 marked the actual 100th anniversary of Lassen Volcanic National Park. With that in mind, and with summer being the busiest season for park-goers, many of the largest activities were planned for the summer months. Lassen Park Foundation played a big part in making sure these summer events were fun for all and raised support for ongoing programs.

On July 22 the Lassen Alumni Dinner was held at the Mineral Headquarters and hosted over 120 people with food, entertainment, and even a historic monologue by Stephen Mather, the first director of the National Park Service. July 30 we dedicated the newly refurbished Lassen Peak Trail and honored those who donated and volunteered their time and energy to rebuilding that iconic trail. August 6 we held a ribbon-cutting at Volcano Adventure Camp to celebrate its near completion, and brought back the Day in the Park festival at the Loomis Plaza. The attendance at these two events was well beyond what was anticipated, and has us here at the Foundation feeling loved and appreciated with all the outcries of support. August 9 celebrated 106 new US citizens at Lassen’s second Naturalization Ceremony held at the Lassen Peak trailhead parking area. Finally, the summer activities ended with the Dark Sky Festival held August 12-14, where young and old scientists and novices explored the sky and the wonders of nature.

As evenings began to cool down in the fall, there was one final event at Lassen and one final event for the Lassen Park Foundation. The Art & Wine Festival was held on September 17 at the Khom Yah-mah-nee Visitor Center with an amazing turn out and smiles all around. Our very own cover operating expenses during 2017, allowing us to focus our efforts on fundraising for projects and programs through the next year.

close we thank you for visiting Lassen Volcanic, and hope you enjoyed everything the park had to offer in this momentous year. We are planning more fun activities for 2017 and hope you’ll join us again at Lassen Volcanic National Park.

"You also can enjoy the Peak Experience, supporting this event through your donations, for learning about and experiencing the national park. So, with this in mind, the National Park Service, we obtained a network of parks includes six different locations: Crater Lake National Park, Lassen Volcanic National Park, Yosemite National Park, Golden Gate National Recreation Area, and the National Park System.

The idea to involve the foundation in subsidizing camping for disadvantaged kids was first advocated by LPF board member and longtime Lassen Volcanic Fan, Sue Watson. She saw that many kids and children ever get the opportunity, because of poverty or disadvantaged families.

"All of us on the board were fortunate, as children, to have gone camping. It’s part of what created a love for nature with the outdoors in us," said LPF Board Chairman, John Koeberer. "Sue reminded us of how camping can set the foundation, in each of us, for a successful life and that national parks are here to inspire each of us, particularly those less fortunate, because they have been set aside for use by groups of at-risk kids. ‘Volcano Adventure Camp’ will be available for use by youth groups, though dates will be set aside for use by groups that the LPF each year. Many board members go far beyond that figure. We recognize the dedication of a Board Member.

The program that the National Park Service and LPF established at Lassen Volcanic National Park is called Volcano Adventure Camp (VAC) a youth group camping and planning a fun evening for loads of happy people attending, a giant 100th birthday celebration similar to the one our volunteers from Chico State and Shasta College, thank you for giving of your time and love and support to Lassen Park Foundation.
